Dun Says They're the Lowest For 23 Years.

MORE BUSINESS THAN IN 1892.

Nevertheless the Prices of Manufactured Products Have Advanced but Mildly. Bright Crop Prospects Set Back Speculation In Wheat and Cotton.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade issued today says: The failures during the third quarter of 1897, obtained by telegraph, were 2,993, with liabilities of $28,963,261, of which 29 were in banking for $3,387,069. Commercial failures, 7.874, with liabilities of $25,576,192; average only $8,889 each; lower than in any other quarter for 23 years. The amount of defaulted liabilities is the smallest in any quarter for five years, and in 15 years only six quarters have shown smaller liabilities. Manufacturing failures, 651, with liabilities of $9,431,191; average but $14,487 each; and trading, 2,164, with liabilities of $12,825,065; average but $5,927 each—both smaller in average than in any previous year of which classified records

The value of legitimate business continues a little larger than in the same month of 1892, for while the great increase of 27.4 per cent at New York for the week might be supposed due to speculative activity, in spite of the establishment and growth of the Stock Exchange clearinghouse, yet payments through the principal clearinghouses outside of New York exceeded those of 1892 by 3.5 per cent and 2 per cent for September. New York makes settlements for a large part of the country, and the daily average including try, and the daily average, including this city, was, in September, $206,364,000, against $134,859,000 last year; $133,310,000 in 1894, $122,733,000 in 1893, $176,327,000 in 1892, so that the gain over the same month in the best of years past is 17 per cent of years past is 17 per cent.

These evidences of prosperity are the more important because prices for most manufactured products have advanced but moderately and are much below the level of 1892, while the speculative markets are declining with curious unanimity, as if the large crops which make grain and cotton weak would not His New Iron Mines Greatest Producers assure increased business to railways and warrant better prices for stocks.

Speculation in wheat and cotton has been set back by bright crop prospects. The price of wheat has declined 5 cents and of corn nearly 2 cents for the week. Dismal reports about cotton have been frequent, but the market shows more faith in predictions of a large yield and the price has declined 4 cent for the week.

Turning from speculative markets to productive industry, the change in tone is striking. All industries are pushed to increase working force, with occasional rise in rate of wages, by the growing demand. This is largely for replenishment of stocks, but dispatches show that retail trade at nearly all northern points continues to expand, and dealers well know that increase of working force and of wages ensures a larger distribution of goods. Anxious appeals for speedy deliveries disclose more rapid distribution already than had been expected, and in textile manufactures the works are hindered from taking as liberal orders as they might by doubts about future prices, though having enough to do for some time. The advance in cotton goods has been checked by the decline in material, but in woolen goods, the advance in prices has been small compared with the rise in wool.

Slower to gain, because less affected by replenishment of dealers, the iron manufacture has been pushed to further expansion by growing demand for finished products, which has caused a little further advance in prices, while pigiron is also higher. The average advance in all iron and steel prices is 9.9 per cent from the lowest point, and is still restricted by addition of many furnaces and other works to those in oper-

Failures for the week have been 194 in the United States, against 299 last year and 34 in Canada, against 46 last year.

MORE FUN WITH ALLPORT.

He Was Fooled on Another Bone In the Luetgert Trial.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—The monotony of the scientific and painfully technical proceedings of the Luetgert murder trial was relieved by a hearty laugh at the expense of Dr. Allport, the chief osteological expert of the defense. Dr. Allport had identified a piece of bone as the emporal of a human being. He observed that the bone would indicate that the person had been large and

"Yes, I suppose he was," observed Assistant State's Attorney McEwen. "He was a girilla." This announcement rather staggered Dr. Allport, but he joined in the general laugh among lawyers, experts and spectators. There was a warm tilt between the witness and Assistant State's Attorney Mc-Ewan during the afternoon. After answering a question Dr. Allport proceeded to give a little explanatory lecture, digressing somewhat from the subject under consideration. When he paused McEwen gazed at the witness a moment and remarked: "You are a little too fresh."

Ex-Judge Vincent was on his feet in a moment appealing for protection for the witness.

"A little rebuke like that is good for some people," remarked Assistant State's Attorney McEwen. "One small head does not contain all there is to know about bones."

Ex-Judge Vincent continued to demand that his chief anatomist be protected by the court. Judge Tuthill put a stop to the dispute by leaning over his desk and remarking: "Gen-tlemen, proceed with the trial of this

In the World.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 2.—The announcement that Andrew Carnegie has secured control of the Norrie group of mines located on the Gogebic range and known as the Big Norrie, North Norrie, East Norrie and Pabst mines is confirmed. The transfer of the stock is being made by the shareholders. The Big Norrie mine has an output of 1,000,000 tons of ore and is the largest of the four. The other three also have large outputs.

The monetary consideration has not been made public. Henry W. Oliver of Pittsburg represented the Carnegie interests in the negotiations. In securing the Norrie property, Mr. Carnegie, it is claimed, is assured of controlling the output of the largest iron mines in the world, producing the very highest grade ore at the lowest figures.

Melancholy October Atmosphere In New York.

ONE VICTIM KILLED 4 CHILDREN.

A Bridegroom Jumped From a Hotel Window In the Presence of His Bride. Two Persons Took Carbolic Acid. Another Shoots Himself-Other Cases.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. - "Melancholy days of October" opened with an epidemic of lifetaking in the Metropolis. A woman killed her four children and herself by illuminating gas; another woman and a man drank carbolic acid; still another unfortunate put a bullet in his head; and a bridegroom of a few hours flung himself from a win-

Mrs. Caroline Rivinius, about 40 years old, came from West point with her four children, two boys and two girls, ranging in age from 7 to 15 years. They went to the West Shore hotel and engaged a room. After waiting until the little ones had gone to sleep, the mother methodically stuffed up all holes and openings in the room, turned on the gas and laid down and died with her children.

Mrs. Bertha Hummel took carbolic acid at her home in Brooklyn and died despondent for some time. She was married and had two children.

Rudolph Kroke found death by the same means, and died an hour later. He was 57 years old.

Theodore Miller, a clothing cutter, committed suicide by shoothing himself. Dr. Robert N. Flagg, 38 years old, was married at Yonkers and, coming here, jumped from a secondstory window of the Murray Hill hotel. His skull was fractured, a leg broken and his body bruised and cut. He will die. The woman, who will be a widow almost as soon as she became a bride, was in the room at the time and rode in the ambulance to the hospital. He was mentally unbalanced from business troubles.

A man registered as C. F. K. Boyce, San Francisco, was found dead at the Grand Union hotel. A tube, through which gas was flowing from an open jet, was in his mouth. Nothing was found by which he might be identified.

At White Plains, Edward L. Hafner and Frank C. Holly of Norwalk, Conn., the former a cigar merchant, and the latter in the employ of a druggists' supply company, were found dead in their apartments, asphyxiated by gas.

At a picnic in the outskirts of Brooklyn, William Klynger killed John Mc-Nally by a blow with his fist. Julia Cutto of Brooklyn, worn out by family troubles, ended her life with a draught of carbolic acid. George Martin, serving a sentence for burglary in the Kings County penitentiary, cut his throat with a piece of glass, part of a broken lamp chimney, and cannot recover. Michael Walsh was found dead at the Fulton notel from the effects it is believed of drugs.

He was not seen again until his body was found. He had placed a rubber tube over the gas jet and placing one end in his mouth turned on the deadly fluid. He left no message to indicate his motive, but it is believed his mind was effected.

He was about 45 years old and leaves a widow and two children. He was admitted to the Chester county bar in 1873 and rapidly rose to a position of eminence. He manifested a great deal of interest in politics, and was the nominee of his party for many important places, among them being that of congressman. He was a friend of ex-Governor Pattison and stumped the state for him. He was always a persistent worker and seldom took any rest. This led to his mind becoming impaired and. in 1891, he disappeared from home, and six months later wrote to his family from Australia. He returned afterwards, but could give no account of his movements.

After being treated in a private asylum for some time he made his escape and returned home. Since then he appeared to be improving and had devoted himself to his profession. HOLDUP IN DAYLIGHT.

A Bold Train Robbery In Indian Territory.

ONE OF THE BANDITS A LAWYER.

His Mask Fell Off and He Was Recognized-Was Educated at Morgantown University - Passengers Robbed - Safe Would Not Yield.

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—Bandits robbed the southbound Rock Island passenger train and all the passengers in daylight at siding No. 1, about five miles south of Minco, in the Indian Territory. The railroad and express officials have feared a holdup in that section for several weeks, and armed guards have been put aboard all night trains at El Reno and carried through to Chickasaw. It had not been thought that the outlaws were bold enough to attack a train in mid-day. The trainmen were completely surprised, and they were not prepared to offer any resistance when five masked men came upon them at the lonely siding.

The place is uninhabited, the only persons in the vicinity at the time being four section men. These section men flagged the train, the robbers having compelled them to do so. The bandits were hidden at the time in a brush pile and jumped out as soon as the passenger train had taken the siding.

Under the pressure of Winchesters
and ugly looking six-shooters the trainmen, the express messenger and all of the score or more of passengers were made to climb down from the train and stand in a line, hands up, on the prairie along the railway. While three of the robbers covered the badly frightened crowd with their guns, the other two cools and carefully replied them proceeds. cooly and carefully robbed them, passing from one passenger to another down the line. The bandits secured about $300 in cash and such other valuables, in the way of watches, pins and jewelry as were in sight. The passengers and the trainmen having been thoroughly plucked, three of the bandits turned their attention to the express and mail coaches, the other standing guard over the helpless crowd on the track. The registered mail pouches were quickly rifled, but the through safe in the express car resisted all the force and the ingenuity of the road When the messengers convinced the bandits that they could not open the strong box they resorted to dynamite. Several heavy charges were exploded, but the safe proved banditproof.

The bandits then mounted their horses and rode off toward the west.

As soon as the trainmen could collect their wits they got their scared passengers aboard and hurried on to the next station south, Chickasaw, from which point the railroad officials were notified of the holdup. Officers were started in

During the robbery one of the bandits lost his mask, his features for a moment being wholly exposed. The conductor of the train states that this man was an ex-county attorney of Canadian county, O. T., who was educated at the University of West Virginia. Later the conductor was not so positive.

The few women passengers were not compelled to give up their valuables, and Rev. Mr. Roe, one of the passengers, who was sick, was not compelled to leave the coach.

Jim Wright of Minco showed a disposition to resist when the bandits ordered "hands-up." They shot one of his ears off to prove to his satisfaction that his bravery was ill advised. Wright's hands then went up. No one else was injured.

HENRY GEORGE FOR MAYOR.

The Silver Democrats of New York Named a Candidate.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—At the city nominating convention of the Democratic Alliance of Greater New York Henry George was unanimously nominated for mayor. The nominating speech was made by Charles Francis Adams. The nomination was greeted with enthusiastic applause. The platform in part follows:

"The Democratic Alliance is a body of Democrats loyal to the policy of the great Democratic party. Our aim and object was to find a basis for united action of all Democrats in the pending municipal contest. We deemed it essential that the Democratic party of Grearer New York should reaffirm the Chicago platform, pledge itself to the policy of municipal ownership and operation of franchises and to the principle of direct employment instead of the contract system.

These evidences of prosperity are the more important because prices for most manufactured products have advanced but moderately and are much below the level of 1892, while the speculative markets are declining with curious unanimity, as if the large crops which make grain and cotton weak would not assure increased business to railways and warrant better prices for stocks.

MONAGHAN KILLED HIMSELF. Suicide of the Noted Democratic Politician and Lawyer.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—Robert Jones Monaghan, a prominent lawyer of West Chester, and well known in state G. J. Davis and Thomas Downer. The Democratic circles, has committed sui-cide at the Ridgway House, Delaware thousands of dollars to the ton.

avenue and Market street, by innaing illuminating gas. Mr. Monaghan registered as John F. Warren of Wilmington, Del. No one knew him and after paying for his room he retired. He was not seen again until his body was found. He had placed a rubber tube over the gas jet and placing one end in his mouth turned on the deadly fluid. He left no message to indicate his motive, but it is believed his mind was effected.

He was about 45 years old and leaves a widow and two children. He was admitted to the Chester county bar in 1873 and rapidly rose to a position of eminence. He manifested a great deal of interest in politics, and was the nominee of his party for many important places, among them being that of congressman. He was a friend of ex-Governor Pattison and stumped the state for him. He was always a persistent worker and seldom took any rest. This in 1891, he disappeared from home, and six months later wrote to his family from Australia. He returned afterwards, but could give no account of his movements.

After being treated in a private asylum for some time he made his escape and returned home. Since then he appeared to be improving and had devoted himself to his profession. H had offices in this city, and for many years was on the editorial staff of The Legal Intelligencer. The police searched the body and found cards bearing his name. His former law partner, R. B. Taylor, identified the remains.

HOLDUP IN DAYLIGHT.

A Bold Train Robbery In Indian Territory.

ONE OF THE BANDITS A LAWYER.

His Mask Fell Off and He Was Recognized-Was Educated at Morgantown University - Passengers Robbed - Safe Would Not Yield.

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—Bandits robbed the southbound Rock Island passenger train and all the passengers in daylight at siding No. 1, about five miles south of Minco, in the Indian Territory. The railroad and express officials have feared a holdup in that section for several weeks, and armed guards have been put aboard all night trains at El Reno and carried through to Chickasaw. It had not been thought that the outlaws were bold enough to attack a train in mid-day. The trainmen were completely surprised, and they were not prepared to offer any resistance when five masked men came upon them at the lonely siding.

The place is uninhabited, the only persons in the vicinity at the time being four section men. These section men flagged the train, the robbers having compelled them to do so. The bandits were hidden at the time in a brush pile and jumped out as soon as the passenger train had taken the siding.

Under the pressure of Winchesters
and ugly looking six-shooters the trainmen, the express messenger and all of the score or more of passengers were made to climb down from the train and stand in a line, hands up, on the prairie along the railway. While three of the robbers covered the badly frightened crowd with their guns, the other two cooly and carefully robbed them, passing from one passenger to another down the line. The bandits secured about $300 in cash and such other valuables, in the way of watches, pins and jewelry as were in sight. The passengers and the trainmen having been thoroughly plucked, three of the ban-dits turned their attention to the express and mail coaches, the other standing guard over the helpless crowd on the track. The registered mail pouches were quickly rifled, but the through safe in the express car resisted all the force and the ingenuity of the road agents. When the messengers convinced the bandits that they could not open the strong box they resorted to dynamite. Several heavy charges were exploded, but the safe proved bandit-

The bandits then mounted their horses and rode off toward the west. As soon as the trainmen could collect their wits they got their scared passengers aboard and hurried on to the next station south, Chickasaw, from which point the railroad officials were notified of the holdup. Officers were started in pursuit.

During the robbery one of the bandits lost his mask, his features for a moment being wholly exposed. The conductor of the train states that this man was an ex-county attorney of Canadian county, O. T., who was educated at the University of West Virginia. Later the conductor was not so positive.

The few women passengers were now compelled to give up their valuables, and Rev. Mr. Roe, one of the passengers, who was sick, was not compelled to leave the coach.

Jim Wright of Minco showed a disposition to resist when the bandits ordered "hands-up." They shot one of his ears off to prove to his satisfaction that his bravery was ill advised. Wright's hands then went up. No one else was injured.

HENRY GEORGE FOR MAYOR.

The Silver Democrats of New York Named a Candidate.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. - At the city nominating convention of the Democratio Alliance of Greater New York Henry George was unanimously nominated for mayor. The nominating speech was made by Charles Francis Adams. The nomination was greeted with enthusiastic applause.

The platform in part follows: "The Democratic Alliance is a body of Democrats loyal to the policy of the great Democratic party. Our aim and object was to find a basis for united action of all Democrats in the pending municipal contest. We deemed it essential that the Democratic party of Grearer New York should reaffirm the Chicago platform, pledge itself to the policy of municipal ownership and operation of franchises and to the principle of direct employment instead of the contract system.

HAMMONDSVILLE IS MAD

The good people of Hammondsville illustrate in the case to be presented. are up in arms against the Pennsylvania company, and if they place in working form some of the ideas advanced on the street every day the Cleveland and Pittsburg officials will have some breezy experiences before the new year comes.

Agent Wallace, who for a great many years controlled the Hammondsville end of the railroad, and did not receive a salary sufficiently remunerative to make him a millionaire, passed into the great beyond the other day, and the company was without a representative. Immediately the freight department of the depot was closed, and shippers were informed that all freight billed to that point must be prepaid and put off at the shipper's risk. That, of course, caused a howl to go floating upward, and miniature indignation meetings wherever it was possible for a few of Hammondsville's people to gather were held. They argued that the company must be brought to time and that at once, for they could do no business with the town wiped off the map.

But this excitement did not compare that which followed the with when the announcement that changed next schedule was month it would be found that Hammondsville would have no passenger service. As the company only allows two of its trains to stop at present the new condition was something more than the town could bear. Immediately some of the more progressive citizens arranged a cancus. At this they decided to incorporate the community, take in a great stretch of country and by ordinance fix the rate of speed for all passenger trains at six miles an hour. If that did not bring the company to time they proposed to change it to the limit allowed by the law of the state, if there happened to be a law.

That is where the matter stands at present. How it will end even Hammondsville cannot tell, but the little village is enthusiastic and confidently believes that within a few months the Pennsylvania company will be at its feet, earnestly pleading for permission to run its trains 40 miles on hour as it does in Liverpool.

The Man Told, and Yet the Professor Was Not Satisfied.

Professor B--, who conducts the clinic of nervous diseases at -- Medical college of Chicago, is himself a very nervous and easily irritated man. Recently at the close of a long clinic, when teacher and students were well tired out, the assistant rushed in and asked to have exhibited a very interesting case which had just arrived.

"Well, be quick about it," said the doctor, and he proceeded to emphasize some previous remarks concerning the influence of occupation upon nervous conditions, which point he proposed to

The patient, an awkward Swede, having been hustled into a chair, was now confronted by Professor B--with the admonition to be brief and accurate in his replies, as time was limited.

"Now look here, sir! I want no more of this. You answer the questions I ask you or go home. What do you make on this machine?"

A ray of intelligence lit up the face of the Swede and, with a confident smile, he said: "Oh, now aw understan vo'! Yo' vant to know vat aw mak' on the masheen, eesn't et?"

STUBBS WAS TOUCHED.

And He Gave Up His Fare to the Man Who Touched Him.

Stubbs is really not very absentminded, but when he is riding on a street car he makes it a point not to look at the conductor. It often saves car fare, for there is something about Stubbs that makes him lucky enough to be overlooked two cases in ten when he boards a loaded car.

One morning he was absorbed in his paper, and when he felt a touch on his arm he mechanically passed out his nickel and went on with his reading. Later the conductor stood beside him and murmured, "Fare, please," but received no attention. Stubbs had paid his fare. Then the abominable nuisance of a conductor seized him by the shoulder and held out his hand, saying sternly, "Fare, please."

"I paid you before," said Stubbs as affably as he could.

"No, you did not. Come, pass out car fare.

"Man, I paid my fare when you were around before." And Stubbs thought for an adjective he might use when there were ladies about. "You-you-infernal-idiot, you are drunk or asleep, for when you touched me on the arm I passed out a nickel, and you must have taken it, for it was the only one I had,' fumbling in his change pocket. With a red face the conductor rang the bell to stop the car, roaring, "You will have to pay your fare or get off the car," in a tone that startled every one. "I did not get your nickel, and you know it." At that minute the man who had nudged Stubbs to move over in the seat he had occupied with him dropped off the car and walked the other block to his office. The next time Stubbs rode in a crowded car he gently touched the arm of an acquaintance and got even for the 5 cents he had lost and for the chagrin he had suffered. - Chicago News.

Milton's Wives and Daughters.

Of Milton's three wives and his relations with them enough has been written. It was a hard thing to be Milton's wife or Milton's daughter. He was stern, he was austere, he was self centered; his impeccable strength was purchased by a sublime and monotonous egoism, which is the name they give to selfishness in poets. Very chill must have been the life of his girls in that Puritan house, reading to the inwrapped Puritan father from languages they did not understand and taking down from his lips poetry they understood still less. Milton found them undutiful. Poor little "undutiful" daughters! Fathers had terrible conceptions of duty in those days. Did any one ever want to know Milton? Did any one ever not want to know Shakespeare? Doubtless there are readers of the Exeter Hall class who would have yearned for the godly company of the "great Christian poet." But, on the whole, how thankful one should be that Shakespeare was not a "Christian poet!" - Academy.

eves fill his hand might tremble as it touched the brim of his scouting hat, but the salute was precise as ever.

"I thank the captain and beg to thank the captain's kind lady," was his invariable formula on such occasions. "I hope the boy will always do his duty."

And then he would face about and stride away with his head very high in the air and his eyes blinking hard, and slmost immediately his voice would be heard sternly berating some trooper whose horse had tangled himself in his lariat, or whose "kit" was not stowed in proper shape about the saddle. It was his way of striving to hide the joy those messages brought him, and the men were quick to see through it all, and little Reddy Mulligan, reprimanded for the third time within a fortnight, started a laugh all through the bivouac by his whimsical protest:

"It's more good news ye've been getting from Fred, sergeant, dear, isn't it, now? Faith, I wish he'd play ye a thrick wanst in awhile, like other byes. Maybe thin I'd be mintioned to the captain for a corporalship." And for once the veteran turned his back on the laughing troop conscious of defeat.

In 1874 old Waller changed the yellow stripes and diamond of the first sergeantcy for the crimson and the star of the ordnance, and the troopers, one and all, said goodby to him with infinite regret. Perhaps Dawson, who was next in rank, may be excepted. He confidently expected to be promoted to Waller's place; but, though a dashing soldier and a smart noncommissioned officer, he was not the stanch, reliable man the captain needed and proved it by celebrating Waller's promotion in a very boisterous and unseemly manner. It was plain that he had been drinking heavily, and though Captain Charlton saved him from arrest and court martial he would not promote him and plainly, though privately, told him why. The troop knew it was for this reason, but Dawson swore it was all on account of Waller's influence against him when Sergeant Graham was named in regimental orders as the old veteran's suc-

That same summer, with firm hand and glistening eyes, Waller signed his consent to the enlistment of his son as trumpeter in the old troop. How he watched the boy's glowing face as the oath of enlistment, so often lightly spoken, was solemnly repeated, and Fred was bound to the service of his country! How he trembled from head to foot when, but a few weeks afterward and in the dead of night, Charlton and his men hurried forth to intercept a band of Indians who had swooped down upon the herders south of Laramie peak! Waller could hardly buckle the cantle straps of Fred's saddle as the little fellow, all eagerness, was bustling about his horse in the dim light of the stable lanterns. Yet when the captain and Lieutenant Rayburn came trotting briskly down the roadway, and the men were silently "leading into line," it was the old sergeant's hand that grasped the boy's left foot and swung him lightly into his seat.

Whatever happens, sir, mind you keep close to the captain," was his parting injunction to his boy. Then his heels came together with the old cavalry click, and his twitching fingers were stiffened as they went suddenly up in salute to Mr. Rayburn, who bent down from his saddle to say that they would try to take good care of Fred. But Waller answered:

"I thank the lieutenant. The boy is a soldier now, sir. He must take his chances with the rest." Then with one lingering clasp of the trumpeter's hand, "Join your captain," he ordered and turned away into the darkness.

But the sentry on No. 6 bore witness to the fact that the ordnance sergeant never went to bed again all that night, and the men sent to unload and store the ammunition that came next day from Rock Island arsenal declared that old Waller was gruffer than ever. All the next night, too, he was awake, waiting, watching for tidings from the north. Nothing came until sunset of the second day, just as the whole command was turning out for retreat parade, and then Corporal Rock rode in with dispatches and trotted straight to where the commanding officer was standing in front of the adjutant's office. All eyes were upon him as he threw himself from the saddle and handed the packet to the colonel. Half a dozen officers hastened to join their commander as he tore it open. The piazzas of the officers' quarters were quickly alive with ladies and children, breathlessly eager to hear the news. The colonel's orderly was seen hastening to the surgeon's house-that looked ominousthen Rock remounted, trotted to Captain Charlton's gate, where Mrs. Charlton was tremblingly awaiting him. "It's all right, ma'am," he hastened to say. "Leastwise the captain's safe, but geant Frazer." She hurried in the house with the precious letter he placed in her hands, and while several ladies hastened to join her the messenger returned to the office.

All this while Sergeant Waller had stood like a statue under the tall white flagstaff where the noncommissioned staff assembled at retreat, watching every move with dry, aching eyes and a face gray as his mustache.

CHAPTER III. A ROBBER IN CAMP.

The trumpet played the retreat, the sunset gun thundered its good night to the god of day, the adjutant hurried over and received the reports of the companies, the staff and band, and then a messenger came running to them: "Mrs. Charlton wants you, Sergeant Waller. Fred's all safe, but they had a sharp fight."

The old man could not trust himself to speak. "Listen to this, sergeant," exclaimed Mrs. Charlton as she hurried through the little group of ladies at her doorway and looked up in his face with tear dimmed eyes:

"Tell Waller that in a running fight of four miles Fred rode close at my heels and no man could have shown more spirit or less fear. I am sure it was a shot from his carbine that tumbled one war pony into the Laramie, and every call he had to sound rang out clear as a bell. I'm proud of the boy."

Waller's face was twitching and working. He cleared his throat and tried to speak. He dashed his hand across his eyes and ground his heels into the gravel of the walk. He heard the kind and gentle voices of the ladies joining in the chorus of congratulation, but he could not see their faces. A mist had risen before his eyes. Even the old formula, "I thank the captain's lady," had deserted him. He mumbled some inarticulate words and then, in dread of disastrous break down, turned suddenly away and strode across the drive. More than one woman was in tears. There was not a ripple of faintest laughter when it was seen that in his blindness the old sergeant had collided with the tree box at the edge of the acequia. Straight to his humble quarters he went, but they were beautiful to him, radiant with the light of joy, pride, gratitude and love that beamed and burned in his honest heart.

And now, a year later, all the cavalry was in the field. Gold had tempted explorers and miners innumerable to the Black Hills of Dakota-Indian land by solemn treaty. The government warned the invaders back, but to no purpose. The Indians swarmed from the agencies and massacred all whom they could overpower. Charlton's troop had early been hurried up to Red Cloud, and now with others was engaged in the perilous work of patrolling the trails around the Indian haunts.

Two months of hard and most exciting work had they had, and still the troubles were not over, and then, just after the paymaster with his iron safe and bristling escort had paid the outlying posts a visit, and Captain Charlton had been ordered in with him to attend a court martial at Fort Laramie, there came a week that no man in B troop ever forgot.

was in the hospital at Fort Robinson.

"Trumpeter Waller's gone, sir-deserted." Twenty of the men were away on escort duty, and so it happened that only young Lieutenant Blunt and about 30 troopers were left at the camp, just west of the agency. Fearful that the money. "burning" as it always does in the soldiers' pockets, would tempt his men to gamble or drink and get into mischief around the crowded post, Charlton had ordered that the troop should march at once to the Niobrara and wait there for his return. It was known, of course, that many Indian bands were out, and it promised to be adventurous. It was Mr. Blunt's first independent command, too, and he felt a trifle nervous. All went well, however, until the morning of the second day, when Sergeant Graham excitedly called his young commander, his face clouded with dismay. "Lieutenant," he cried, "Sergeant Dawson and several men were robbed last night. The money's clean gone." Blunt was out of his blanket in an

Professor B--, who conducts the clinic of nervous diseases at --- Medical college of Chicago, is himself a very nervous and easily irritated man. Recently at the close of a long clinic, when teacher and students were well tired out, the assistant rushed in and asked to have exhibited a very interesting case which had just arrived.

"Well, be quick about it," said the doctor, and he proceeded to emphasize some previous remarks concerning the influence of occupation upon nervous conditions, which point he proposed to illustrate in the case to be presented.

The patient, an awkward Swede, having been hustled into a chair, was now confronted by Professor Bwith the admonition to be brief and accurate in his replies, as time was lim-

"Oh, et ees a big masheen!" By this time the students were grinning broadly and whispering pleasantries, all of which caused the professor to redden and break into a volley at the poor Swede.

"Now look here, sir! I want no more of this. You answer the questions I ask you or go home. What do you make on this machine?"

A ray of intelligence lit up the face of the Swede and, with a confident smile, he said: "Oh, now aw understan yo'! Yo' vant to know vat aw mak' on the masheen, eesn't et?"

STUBBS WAS TOUCHED.

And He Gave Up His Fare to the Man Who Touched Him.

Stubbs is really not very absentminded, but when he is riding on a street car he makes it a point not to look at the conductor. It often saves car fare, for there is something about Stubbs that makes him lucky enough to be overlooked two cases in ten when he boards a loaded car.

One morning he was absorbed in his paper, and when he felt a touch on his consent to the enlistment of his son as arm he mechanically passed out his nickel and went on with his reading. Later the conductor stood beside him and murmured, "Fare, please," but received no attention. Stubbs had paid of a conductor seized him by the shoulder and held out his hand, saying sternly, "Fare, please."

"I paid you before," said Stubbs as affably as he could.

"No, you did not. Come, pass out car fare. " "Man, I paid my fare when you were around before." And Stubbs thought for an adjective he might use when there were ladies about. "You-you-infernal-idiot, you are drunk or asleep, for when you touched me on the arm I passed out a nickel, and you must have taken it, for it was the only one I had,' fumbling in his change pocket.

With a red face the conductor rang the bell to stop the car, roaring, "You will have to pay your fare or get off the car," in a tone that startled every one. "I did not get your nickel, and you know it.'

At that minute the man who had nudged Stubbs to move over in the seat he had occupied with him dropped off the car and walked the other block to his office.

The next time Stubbs rode in a crowded car he gently touched the arm of an acquaintance and got even for the 5 cents he had lost and for the chagrin he had suffered. - Chicago News.

Milton's Wives and Daughters.

Of Milton's three wives and his relations with them enough has been written. It was a hard thing to be Milton's wife or Milton's daughter. He was stern, he was austere, he was self centered; his impeccable strength was purchased by a sublime and monotonous egoism, which is the name they give to selfishness in poets. Very chill must have been the life of his girls in that Puritan house, reading to the inwrapped Puritan father from languages they did not understand and taking down from his lips poetry they understood still less. Milton found them undutiful. Poor little "undutiful" daughters! Fathers had terrible conceptions of duty in those days. Did any one ever want to know Milton? Did any one ever not want to know Shakespeare? Doubtless there are readers of the Exeter Hall class who would have yearned for the godly company of the "great Christian poet." But, on the whole, how thankful one 'Christian poet!''-Academy.

eves fill his hand might tremble as it touched the brim of his scouting hat, but the salute was precise as ever.

"I thank the captain and beg to thank the captain's kind lady," was his invariable formula on such occasions. "I hope the boy will always do his

And then he would face about and stride away with his head very high in the air and his eyes blinking hard, and almost immediately his voice would be heard sternly berating some trooper whose horse had tangled himself in his lariat, or whose "kit" was not stowed in proper shape about the saddle. It was his way of striving to hide the joy those messages brought him, and the men were quick to see through it all, and little Reddy Mulligan, reprimanded for the third time within a fortnight, started a laugh all through the bivouac by his whimsical protest:

"It's more good news ye've been getting from Fred, sergeant, dear, isn't it, now? Faith, I wish he'd play ye a thrick wanst in awhile, like other byes. Maybe thin I'd be mintioned to the captain for a corporalship." And for once the veteran turned his back on the laughing troop conscious of defeat. In 1874 old Waller changed the yellow stripes and diamond of the first sergeantcy for the crimson and the star of the ordnance, and the troopers, one and all, said goodby to him with infinite regret. Perhaps Dawson, who was next in rank, may be excepted. He confidently expected to be promoted to Waller's place; but, though a dashing soldier and a smart noncommissioned officer, he was not the stanch, reliable man the captain needed and proved it by celebrating Waller's promotion in a very boisterous and unseemly manner. It was plain that he had been drinking heavily, and though Captain Charlton saved him from arrest and court martial he would not promote him and plainly, though privately, told him why. The troop knew it was for this reason, but Dawson swore it was all on account of Waller's influence against him when Sergeant Graham was named in regimental orders as the old veteran's suc-

That same summer, with firm hand and glistening eyes, Waller signed his trumpeter in the old troop. How he watched the boy's glowing face as the oath of enlistment, so often lightly spoken, was solemnly repeated, and Fred was bound to the service of his country! How he trembled from head to foot when, but a few weeks afterward and in the dead of night, Charlton and his men hurried forth to intercept a band of Indians who had swooped down upon the herders south of Laramie peak! Waller could hardly buckle the cantle straps of Fred's saddle as the little fellow, all eagerness, was bustling about his horse in the dim light of the stable lanterns. Yet when the captain and Lieutenant Rayburn came trotting briskly down the roadway, and the men were silently "leading into line," it was the old sergeant's hand that grasped the boy's left foot and swung him lightly into his seat.

'Whatever happens, sir, mind you keep close to the captain," was his parting injunction to his boy. Then his heels came together with the old cavalry click, and his twitching fingers were stiffened as they went suddenly up in salute to Mr. Rayburn, who bent down from his saddle to say that they would try to take good care of Fred. But Waller answered:

"I thank the lieutenant. The boy is a soldier now, sir. He must take his chances with the rest." Then with one lingering clasp of the trumpeter's hand, "Join your captain," he ordered and turned away into the darkness.

But the sentry on No. 6 bore witness to the fact that the ordnance sergeant never went to bed again all that night, and the men sent to unload and store the ammunition that came next day from Rock Island arsenal declared that old Waller was gruffer than ever. All the next night, too, he was awake, waiting, watching for tidings from the north. Nothing came until sunset of the second day, just as the whole command was turning out for retreat parade, and then Corporal Rock rode in with dispatches and trotted straight to where the commanding officer was standing in front of the adjutant's office. All eyes were upon him as he threw himself from the saddle and handed the packet to the colonel. Half a dozen officers hastened to join their commander as he tore it open. The piazzas of the officers' quarters were quickly alive with ladies and children, breathlessly eager to hear the news. The colonel's orderly was seen hastening to the surgeon's house-that looked ominousthen Rock remounted, trotted to Captain Charlton's gate, where Mrs. Charlton was tremblingly awaiting him. "It's all right, ma'am," he hastened to say. "Leastwise the captain's safe, but geant Frazer." She hurried in the house with the precious letter he placed in her hands, and while several ladies hastened to join her the messenger returned to the office.

All this while Sergeant Waller had stood like a statue under the tall white flagstaff where the noncommissioned staff assembled at retreat, watching every move with dry, aching eyes and a face gray as his mustache.

CHAPTER III. A ROBBER IN CAMP.

The trumpet played the retreat, the sunset gun thundered its good night to the god of day, the adjutant hurried over and received the reports of the companies, the staff and band, and then a messenger came running to them: "Mrs. Charlton wants you, Sergeant Waller. Fred's all safe, but they had a sharp fight."

The old man could not trust himself to speak. "Listen to this, sergeant," exclaimed Mrs. Charlton as she hurried through the little group of ladies at her doorway and looked up in his face with tear dimmed eyes:

"Tell Waller that in a running fight of four miles Fred rode close at my heels and no man could have shown more spirit or less fear. I am sure it was a shot from his carbine that tumbled one war pony into the Laramie, and every call he had to sound rang out clear as a bell. I'm proud of the boy.'

Waller's face was twitching and working. He cleared his throat and tried to speak. He dashed his hand across his eyes and ground his heels into the gravel of the walk. He heard the kind and gentle voices of the ladies joining in the chorus of congratulation, but he could not see their faces. A mist had risen before his eyes. Even the old formula, "I thank the captain's lady,' had deserted him. He mumbled some inarticulate words and then, in dread of disastrous break down, turned suddenly away and strode across the drive. More than one woman was in tears. There was not a ripple of faintest laughter when it was seen that in his blindness the old sergeant had collided with the tree box at the edge of the acequia. Straight to his humble quarters he went, but they were beautiful to him, radiant with the light of joy, pride, gratitude and love that beamed and burned in his honest heart.

And now, a year later, all the cavalry was in the field. Gold had tempted explorers and miners innumerable to the Black Hills of Dakota-Indian land by solemn treaty. The government warned the invaders back, but to no purpose. The Indians swarmed from the agencies and massacred all whom they could overpower. Charlton's troop had early been hurried up to Red Cloud, and now with others was engaged in the perilous work of patrolling the trails around the Indian haunts.

Two months of hard and most exciting work had they had, and still the troubles were not over, and then, just after the paymaster with his iron safe and bristling escort had paid the outlying posts a visit, and Captain Charlton had been ordered in with him to attroop ever forgot.

Mr. Rayburn had been wounded and was in the hospital at Fort Robinson.

"Trumpeter Waller's gone, sir-deserted." Twenty of the men were away on escort duty, and so it happened that only young Lieutenant Blunt and about 30 troopers were left at the camp, just west of the agency. Fearful that the money, "burning" as it always does in the soldiers' pockets, would tempt his men to gamble or drink and get into mischief around the crowded post, Charlton had ordered that the troop should march at once to the Niobrara and wait there for his return. It was known, of course, that many Indian bands were out, and it promised to be adventurous. It was Mr. Blunt's first independent command, too, and he felt a trifle nervous. All went well, however, until the morning of the second day, when Sergeant Graham excitedly called his young commander, his face clouded with dismay.

"Lieutenant," he cried, "Sergeant Dawson and several men were robbed last night. The money's clean gone.'

Blunt was out of his blanket in an instant. "How much is missing?" he "I can't tell yet, sir-a good deal.

"What on earth could be worse?" "Trumpeter Waller's gone, sir-deserted-taken his horse, arms and everything."

But that is not the worst of it."

Without love

would be a good place to emi-grate from. Without it, even money would be a worthless commodity, and all the jewels in the world as valueless as a clod of earth. Without it the human race would die-and be glad of it. Too few young women understand the basic principle implanted in nature by the Creator, that underlies love. Love is but the light in the east that leads to maternity. Love of hus-band is the stepping-stone to love of child.

A childless woman is a sun that gives no light or warmth, a cloud that never showers the thirsty earth, a flower, beautiful, perchance, but without perfume. There are thousands of women who lived well into middle-life without knowing the bliss of a first-born's caress, but who are happy mothers to-day and heap blessings on Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Over 90,000 women have testified to the merits of this marvelous remedy, and many of them have permitted their experiences and photographs to be printed in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. The "Favorite Prescription" quickens the life-giving organism of women. It makes a woman strong and healthy where she most needs vigor and vitality. It cures all weakness and disease of the feminine organs. It eliminates the discomforts on the way to maternity and makes baby's coming easy and nearly painless. Found at all medicine stores.

"In four years," writes Mrs. Minnie Smith, P. M., at Lowell, Lane Co., Ore., "I had miscarried twice. I took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Frescription and now have a healthy baby. I am stronger than in twelve years."

A Permanent Paste.

Soak an ounce of refined gelatin in cold water for an hour, then drain off and squeeze out the water as much as possible. Put the gelatin in a jelly pot and place the pot in a pan of hot water over the fire. When the gelatin has melted, stir in slowly 21/2 ounces of pure alcohol. Put in a wide mouthed bottle and cork tightly. This glue or paste will keep indefinitely and can be melted for use in a few minutes by setting the bottle in a basin of hot water. As it contains a very small percentage of water it affects the gloss of the prints but little and dries almost immediately. - Harper's Round Table.

TALKING ABOUT THE SWITCH

All Are Enthusiastic For Its Construction, and the Prospects Are Bright-Right of Way Has Been Secured-The Board Determined to Clean the Town.

Council and the board of trade held a joint session last night, and the result was another joint meeting which took place this afternoon. They viewed the old survey for the switch back of town and looked with favor on the project, every member favoring the movement.

The board have been at work on the plan for some time, and it can be said that all, with the possible exception of one or two property owners, have given a 20 foot right of way for the switch. The board experienced little trouble in securing the concession. It is the first step in a general movement toward progress, and if it is successful the efforts will be redoubled.

The switch will be built as soon as council passes an ordinance opening the street. The railroad officials are anxious to have it done. The proper committee are now busy preparing the ordinance, and it will be presented to council next

Property owners have cause to rejoice, and on the strength of the prospects numerous real estate deals are being made. It is said by men who ought to know that property in that section has advanced 10 per cent since last evening.

The Patterson pottery will remain. Even though the concern obtains a concession from some other town the plant here will be continued.

TO PREVENT SNORING.

Pad Patented That Will Save Many From Torture.

S. Anderson, a Chicago carpenter and builder, has constructed an apparatus for the prevention and cure of snoring which can hush the trumpeting of the loudest snorer that ever disturbed a neighborhood to a sound as soft as a baby's breath. Mr. Anderson's invention is not so much the result of his skill as a carpenter as that he has snored all his life himself. After trying for nearly 50 years to cure himself of the habit and applying all remedies, from gargling his throat with salt water before going to bed to eating a slice of the wedding cake of a woman who had married the seventh son of a seventh son, all without the slightest effect, Mr. Anderson hit upon the device which he has just had patented.

The gag which he has constructed and which, it is said, will work wonand Reverend Bowers conducted the ders in that particular branch of music is not as large as a croquet ball, as some people might think it would have to be to be effective. It is a small pad which rests in the mouth and is kept from being swallowed by a strap. It is said this will not interfere with the slumbers of the snorer, while at the same time it will keep the snorer from interfering with the slumbers of others.

> Mr. Anderson's invention has not been completed long, but already a good many afflicted people have called at his house to look it over with a view to making presents to their friends. The device is to be manufactured in several sizes, to suit the taste and capacity of the wearer. It is practically indestructible, and one of them may be handed down from father to son or to daughter, if snoring exists on that side of the house. -Chicago Tribune.

hard duties. Chaplains have to buy no expensive uniforms and usually get desirable stations. Some of them give the authorities trouble, however, and there are a number of instances of courts martial of this class for various offenses against the army regulations. Secretary Alger believes that there should be some age limit for the appointment of chaplains and has settled on 38 years as a fair one. None of the candidates, therefore, older than 38 can hope to be selected. Previously no attention has been paid to this point.

The chaplains in the army are not as a rule the healthiest set of commissioned officers, and this is said to be due to the fact that no physical examinations for appointment have been required. Not long ago a chaplain was appointed and confirmed, and when ordered to duty it was discovered that he was a paralytic. Chaplains are admitted to be necessary to the army, but the authorities are weary of having in the service a number of men frequently not physically capable of performing their duties. Secretary Alger will probably provide that the man he selects shall undergo a physical examination before being appointed. - New York Sun.

Two Queens.

"I was much struck," says Max Muller in Cosmopolis, "by the extraordinary power of observation of a French friend of mine, who, when in 1855 the queen and the Empress Eugenie entered the Grand Opera at Paris together and were received with immense applause, turned to his neighbor, an Englishman. and said, 'Look at the difference between your queen and our empress.' They had both bowed graciously and then sat down. 'Did you not observe,' he continued, how the empress looked round to see if there was a chair for her before she sat down? But your queena born queen-sat down without looking. She knew a chair must be there, as surely as she is queen of England.' "

TO PREVENT SNORING.

Pad Patented That Will Save Many From Torture.

S. Anderson, a Chicago carpenter and builder, has constructed an apparatus for the prevention and cure of snoring which can hush the trumpeting of the loudest snorer that ever disturbed a neighborhood to a sound as soft as a baby's breath. Mr. Anderson's invention is not so much the result of his skill as a carpenter as that he has snored William Blakley, a former resident of all his life himself. After trying for and coal business, sustained a loss of habit and applying all remedies, from gargling his throat with salt water before going to bed to eating a slice of the wedding cake of a woman who had married the seventh son of a seventh son, all without the slightest effect, Mr. Anderson hit upon the device which he has just had patented. The gag which he has constructed and which, it is said, will work wonders in that particular branch of music is not as large as a croquet ball, as some people might think it would have to be to be effective. It is a small pad which rests in the mouth and is kept from being swallowed by a strap. It is said this will not interfere with the slumbers of the snorer, while at the same J. N. and W. M. Douds, pilots who time it will keep the snorer from inter-> been completed long, but already a good many afflicted people have called at his house to look it over with a view to making presents to their friends. The device is to be manufactured in several sizes, to suit the taste and capacity of the wearer. It is practically indestructible, and one of them may be handed down from father to son or to daughter, if snoring exists on that side of the house. - Chicago Tribune.

VACANT ARMY CHAPLAINCY.

Three Hundred Clergyman Have Applied For the Place.

Three hundred ministers in the country have been attracted by a vacancy existing in the grade of chaplain in the hard duties. Chaplains have to buy no expensive uniforms and usually get desirable stations. Some of them give the authorities trouble, however, and there are a number of instances of courts martial of this class for various offenses against the army regulations. Secretary Alger believes that there should be some age limit for the appointment of chaplains and has settled on 38 years as a fair one. None of the candidates, therefore, older than 38 can hope to be selected. Previously no attention has been paid to this point.

The chaplains in the army are not as a rule the healthiest set of commissioned officers, and this is said to be due to the fact that no physical examinations for appointment have been required. Not long ago a chaplain was appointed and confirmed, and when ordered to duty it was discovered that he was a paralytic. Chaplains are admitted to be necessary to the army, but the authorities are weary of having in the service a number of men frequently not physically capable of performing their duties. Secretary Alger will probably provide that the man he selects shall undergo a physical examination before being appointed. - New York Sun.

Two Queens.

"I was much struck," says Max Muller in Cosmopolis, "by the extraordinary power of observation of a French Mr. Anderson's invention has not friend of mine, who, when in 1855 the queen and the Empress Eugenie entered the Grand Opera at Paris together and were received with immense applause, turned to his neighbor, an Englishman. and said, 'Look at the difference between your queen and our empress.' They had both bowed graciously and then sat down. 'Did you not observe,' he continued, 'how the empress looked round to see if there was a chair for her before she sat down? But your queena born queen-sat down without looking. She knew a chair must be there, as surely as she is queen of England.' "

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY is at home and the hungry office seeker is away from home-a good many thousands of him are in Washington.

It is sincerely hoped that there is more humanity in the new Spanish ministry than is usually found in the queen regent's advisers.

The announcement that Hon. J. B. Foraker is to be invited to deliver a speech in this city will be heard with pleasure by East Liverpool people. He is an eloquent orator, and likes the Crockery City.

England's crockery manufacturers are reminded every time they look through their American order books that an American administration at present controls what was once their best customer.

WHEN it is too late the Democratic leaders will learn that their campaign of misrepresentation will avail them nothing. The people of Ohio are far too intelligent to swallow the silly stuff sent out by the literary bureau, or pay more than passing attention to Candidate plutocrat, gold-plated-would give labor Chapman and his nonsense.

It is nothing if not amusing to note the desperate efforts of the Democratic press to show that the country is not enjoying an era of unprecedented prosperity. The Steubenville Gazette intimates that wool has advanced because it is scarce, but it fails to explain that the scarcity is caused by buyers who supply the demands of mills that were idle a year ago, but are now, for the Democrats, perniciously active.

WITH Salem and Wellsville looking for new factories, and Leetonia bidding for the Specialty Glass works, this town must move forward if it would keep up with the procession. East Liverpool now has a lead which will keep it ahead of the other towns and cities of Columbiana county, but nothing will be lost if the distance is steadily increased instead of decreased, and the only way to attain that end is to present inducements which will bring people from a distance.

NO DODGING THE ISSUE.

If there is anything in the published statement that Gen. A. J. Warner, and not John R. McLean, is to be the Democratic candidate for senator this last development in the campaign is interesting. It places the Democrats on the Chicago platform, and leaves them no room for the discussion of local subjects, for the general is the exponent and champion of silver. He has thought silver and talked silver through so many years that he has grown to know little else than silver. If, by some unexpected chance, the general should succeed in his efforts he can be depended upon to discuss free coinage and mention the crime of '73 every time he is permitted to speak. McLean, with nothing but money to recommend him, would be bad enough, but Warner, with a hobby to ride, will be infinitely worse. East Liverpool people who heard his speech at the Fifth street rink a year ago will scho that opinion

M'LEAN'S DEMOCRACY.

How His Gold Bonds Would Work If We Degraded Our Standard.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2-The ridiculous eagerness of John R. McLean to kill off everybody and everything in his way to the senate, to sit there in dumb show. and his rabid propensity to force his own wishes upon others, that he may seem to have "views," has given his partisans a great deal of trouble that is personal ticular. to himself. First, he must have a premature "snap" convention, and he must was both sinister and scandalous-and one might appear in the party somewhere, with attractive qualities as a public man, and put an end to the swollen statesmanship of McLean. He must be aware there would be a chance for some young Democrat in Ohio now, with brains, and that the party might be glad if there was a leadership discovered that was not governed by the energy of boodle. Owing to McLean's hasty "bossism," the party that he has That he is at fault all men know.

The party need not would be sufficient to scare the people of the United States, so that they would forselves as to money. McLean, with his six stripe. per cent gold bonds, would have held the place towards the common people in this country that the British have to the Mexicans. It takes two and a half Mexican dollars to pay one dollar's interest in gold, and, give this country up to the free silver gang, it would take fifteen dollars, "legal tender coin," to dred dollars for one year-to John R. McLean. If he has any gold bonds out at four per cent, and could throw this country on a silver basis, his four per cent would grow to ten per cent. The workwhen he had agreed to pay, as he thought four per cent, would have experience of the precise way in which the depreciation of the lawful money of the country works for the relief of labor. McLeanthe money of Mexico, while he fixed his funds after the manner of England.

The pitiful condition into which Mc-Lean has crowded his party in Ohio is owing to the fact that every one of the silver stories told by Bryan, and others who knew no better last year, has been contradicted point blank by the events of the few months since our harvests began, and the extra session of congress was closed, after providing an excellent tariff, which will stand. The facts are familiar; the plain people know that wheat is up and silver down, and that Bryan's theory to account for it is a fraud. We refer, of course, to his 'famine" story; that it was a "famine" that caused the rise in wheat; whereas, the countries threatened with famine are silver countries where the people never could afford to eat white bread. Silver standard countries do not eat wheat—they are too poor. That sort of

HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS

Will Be the Capital Stock of the City's New Financial Institution - Seventy Thousand Dollars Have Already Been Subscribed, and the Remainder Is In Sight-Thirty of the Stockholders Held a Meeting Last Night, and Talked It

When the NEWS REVIEW announced a short time ago that a number of East Liverpool capitalists were considering the formation of a banking company, and would soon announce the particulars of the enterprise, there were many who doubted the truth of the rumor. Today that story is confirmed, and confirmed by men who have already subscribed for stock.

The matter has been under consideration for a number of years. Before the hard times came on there were those who believed the city should have another bank. The depression caused them to change their plans, but with the return of prosperity they took up the project where it had been dropped. It was at first believed that the bank should be a state institution, but and sermon at 7:30. later it was decided to make it a national bank with a capital of $100,000

No sooner had this been decided upon than the leaders of the movement mentioned the matter to men of money, and the stock was so rapidly taken that $70,-000 was very soon subscribed. So eager were some investors that it was decided to place the limit at $5,000, and no one can own more than that amount.

Last night 30 of the prospective stockholders held a meeting at the Young at 2 o'clock. The Mission league meets Men's Christian association, and discussed plans for the future. The idea of a limit pleased every one, as it was clearly the policy to distribute the stock as much as possible. The meeting was one for business, and the parties present day school at 9:30 a.m. discussed the matter in its every phase.

No names are yet announced in connection with the bank, but it is understood that some of the best known financiers of the city are connected with the enterprise. It will be known as the Citizens' National bank.

CHANGED THE ROUTE.

It Would Cost Too Much to Move a Building In Washington Street.

When it was decided that a portion of the Fifth street rink would be moved to a vacant lot near the china works, it was at first proposed to move the building up Washington street. This caused some anxiety among the various companies who have wires in the street, as it would mean an expense to them of probably $500, and if possible the building will be taken out Fifth to Walnut street.

RESIDENTS PROTEST.

They Say the Franklin Street Trough Is a Nuisance.

The watering trough in Franklin street has become a source of much annoyance to the residents. Parties are in the habit of leading their horses down the alley and permitting them to stand on the pavement while they drink. This caused some comment, but yesterday afternoon when a man almost blocked the sidewalk with his buggy, which he was cleaning, pedestrians made a vigorous protest, and complaint will be made to the authorities.

MORE INTEREST IS EXPECTED

When the Cool Nights of Winter Compel the Health Authorities to Seek a Warmer Spot-The Reports Are Interesting Because They Are Brief.

The board of health last evening failed to meet as usual, and at the appointed time Doctor Andrews was the only member to put in an appearance. Holland Manley was on hand with a request to make, but was compelled to postpone it. The board has not had a meeting since June, but when cold weather comes it is thought their interest will revive. The report of Sanitary Officer Burgess for the month shows one case of diphtheria and one case of scarlet fever during that time. He served 41 notices to clean up, and buried four cats and two horses. The bills for the month are Doctor Ogden $25 and J. H. Burgess $50.

The report of Health Officer Ogden showed 29 births and four deaths. This is the lowest death rate in one month for many years, and the health officer suggests that the city should advertise as a health resort.

MANY THINGS BEING CONSIDERED

Gratifying Progress Has Been Made, and They Are Now Well on In the Products of the Clay Shops, but There Is Yet a Great Deal to Be Done.

The joint committee of operatives and manufacturers are hard at work endeavoring to bring about a uniform scale which will be just to all parties concerned.

Meetings are held almost every evening, and the progress already made has been most gratifying. When the session closed last night the committee were well on in the products of the clay shops. and no serious disagreement had come so delay the work. A meeting will be held this evening, and every other evening except Sunday, until the list is completed. When this will be the members do not prophesy, but one of the leaders stated today, that he did not believe they would have the list ready for publication for three weeks or a month.

During the progress of the work it frequently happens that some question more would be his share of the proappears which must be temporarily ceeds, and the promoter advised everypassed, but the committee are confident that all these things will in time be settled, and the list will appear to the satisfaction of all.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

Monthly Statement Shows the Condition of the United States Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.- The monthly treasury statement shows that at the close of business, Sept. 30, 1897, the public debt, less cash in the treasury, is accounted for by a corresponding debrease in the amount of cash on hand. The debt is recapitulated as follows:

Interest-bearing debt, $847,365,540; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,334,570.

Debt bearing no interest, $378,615,-390. Total $1,227,315,500.

This amount, however, does not include $589,070,953 in certificates and treasury notes, outstanding, which are offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury. The cash in the treasury is classified as follows:

Gold, $184,561,664. Silver, $513,481,747. Paper, $133,611,339.

Bonds, disbursing officers balances, etc., $18,713,880.

Total $850,368,631, against which there are demand liabilities outstanding amounting to $635,175,844, which leaves a net cash balance in the treasary of $215,192.787.

NEGROES WANTED TO GO.

All Had Klondike Fever Until the "Organizer" Came to Town.

"Perhaps you may not think that the Klondike fever struck the colored people down our way," said Mr. J. G. Haskins of South Carolina during a recent visit to Washington.

"It struck them hard, and the fever raged with great virulence, particularly in Charleston, for quite a period. It is in order, however, to state that there has been a great abatement of the malady so far as the negro element of our town is concerned. The man who would be rash enough to say 'Klondike' to a lot of colored Charlestonians would be in imminent danger of being ripped open with a razor.

'A week or so ago there appeared in Charleston one of the glibest talking darkies that ever hit the old city. He goldfields of Alaska with cunning art, and he held forth about the wealth to be gathered just for the mere going after it till he had his audiences well nigh crazy. At the proper time he sprung his scheme, which was nothing more or less than the organization of Klondike clubs for the sole and exclusive benefit of the colored race. The negroes had just as much right to the gold that lay round loose up there as anybody, and if they didn't avail themselves of the glorious opportunity to become rich they were the biggest fools on earth. All they had to do was to join the clubs and get an interest in the profits that would accrue. The more money each individual contributed the body to invest every dollar that could be raised.

"Well, those people fairly tumbled over each other in subscribing to the Klondike enterprise. The sleek promoter was in no hurry, but after several days of fat collections he concluded he had worked his Charleston compatriots sufficiently and decamped for fresh pastures. It is safe to say that his colored carcass wouldn't be worth a copper if ever he shows up in that community again. It was a great bunko game, was $1,012,122,713, an increase since August 30 of $2,787,592. This increase same town."—Washington Post same town. "-Washington Post.

KLONDIKE IN WINTER.

How the Natives of the Northwest Keep Themselves Warm.

The Eskimos of the Yukon region have mastered the art of keeping warm with little or no fire. They can live when the thermometer is at 60 degrees below zero with no other heat than that given by a single lamp, re-enforced by that of their own bodies.

The lamp is lighted and set in the middle of a hut so low that no one can stand upright in it. Around the side of the hut is a shelf, generally made of frozen snow, and covered thickly with furs. On this shelf the Indians lie in their sleeping bags, crowded together as closely as they can be packed. The entrance to the hut is through a sort of a tunnel so constructed that the outer air will be entirely excluded. The hut is thus almost wholly without ventilation, and when the lamp is lighted its heat, with that of perhaps a dozen human bodies, makes it possible for any one to live through the winter in the will arrive here today from Detroit, and hut, provided he can stand the unspeakable foulness of its atmosphere. - Mil-

CATS LOSE A FRIEND.

The Death of Miss Mayhew Ends a Life Devoted to the Welfare of Felines.

Lonely cats, deserted by their owners or lured from their homes by heartless boys, have lost a good friend in Miss Annie Mayhew, who died a short time ago in England. This woman was the founder of a cats' home, and her whole time and energies were devoted to caring for deserted and stray pussies, on whose behalf she was constantly appealing to the kindly hearted. Every summer she issued an appeal through the press to persons leaving town, begging them not to forget poor puss, leaving it to starve in their absence.

Miss Mayhew was a firm believer in the theory that there is a happy hunting ground for felines in the future and that human beings and animals will somewhere meet again in the great hereafter. It comforted her to think that in some way pussies who had suffered gross cruelties at the hands of men and women in this life might some day have their compensation.-Exchange.

nellsville Coal Region.

A writer in Forest and Stream says that Elias Blank, one of the early settlers of what is now the great Connellsville coal region, in western Pennsylvania, was among the first Americans to burn soft coal. How the thing came about is thus described:

One night Mr. Blank was aroused by a rapping at his door. Opening it, he admitted a famous Indian fighter, Lewis Whetzell, and a companion, Jonathan Gates, commonly known as "Long

Arms. "Friend Lewis," said Blank, "where have thee and our friend been and where bound?"

"I want to get out of here at once," said Whetzell, "and Long Arms is of the same opinion. This country's bewitched, and Long Arms and I are nearly scared to death."

such stories to me," said old Elias. "Thee knows I am thy friend, and I courage, and friend Jonathan Gates, whom some call Long Arms, fears nothing on earth, and I'm fearful nothing anywhere else, and yet thou tellest me that he and thee are scared even almost unto death. Shame on thee so to declare before thy friend, who loves ye both as he were thy father!"

"No, no, Elias," said Whetzell, dropping into the Quaker speech. "I tell thee no lie. We are scared. Yesterday afternoon we were in hiding about a very carefully, and we got some black rocks to prop up a little kettle and put them beside the fire rather than in it, and the black rocks took fire and burned fiercely, with a filthy smoke and a bright light, and Long Arms said the devil would come if we staid, and we grabbed our kettle and poured out the water and made our way here, leaving the black rocks to burn.

Elias Blank was much interested. He did not tell Whetzell what the black rocks were, but he found out exactly where the men had made their fire, and when they went away he gave them each a new Ezra Engle rifle, a knife and a tomahawk, with four pounds of powder and a supply of lead.

Then he hunted up their camping ground, found the "black rocks" and opened a coal bank into one of the river hills, and this coal bank is still in existence in a 12 foot vein of coal that is absolutely free from slate and burns

Here Cameron groaned over his fevers and his delays, and before me rises the picture of Murphy, stout and burly, sinking with a groan to the ground, and Dillon, blind and helpless, lying wearily on his couch. In later times Captain Carter of elephant fame had to flee from the house as from a house infected, and but a few days ago its tributaries. his Scotch assistant and two Belgians were on the point of shooting each other with their revolvers, and, last of all, to close this "strange, eventful history," here lies yours truly, resting from his long and lonely march and feeling as if his work was o'er.

Clean Shirts In Germany.

The Berlin Boersen-Courier tells about a German's invention of a paper shirt front which is intended to appeal to the large number of continental Germans who wear dickies. The shirt front has a paper collar polish and is in seven layers. As each layer is torn off it reveals another white, glistening front. Thus from one paper dicky the wearer may evolve a clean paper shirt front for every day in the week. The dicky is made to button to any kind of shirt. It costs but 30 pfennig, or about 7 cents; consequently the expense of a and potteries asking that teams be sent clean front is but a cent a day. In view of the prevalence of the dicky habit in Germany the inventor has taken steps to manufacture his compound shirt fronts in large quantities.

ESSENTED RED REPREDENCED REPRE

Klondyke

The Land of Golden Nuggets.

JOSEPH LADUE,

"Friend Lewis, thee must not tell the new Bonanza King of the Klondyke Gold Regions, gives the facts. His book reads like "The Arabian Nights," BUT Joseph Ladue KNOWS whereof he writes. He was the first man on the spot when the first gold was discovered thy head. I know thou art a man of last August, 1896. He located one rich claim and immediately purchased twelve others at a low price before their value was known. He has refused $100,000 for any ONE of these claims, as they are rich with virgin gold nuggets, beyond the dream of avarice. Joseph Ladue then at the mouth of the Klondyke and Yukon Rivers, by erecting the first house in the region in September, one month after the gold was first discovered. He evening we built a fire under the bank bought 178 acres from the government on the city site where his town lots 150x50 are now selling for $5,000 each.

Mr. Ladue was fortunate enough to be successful in his trading post investments to have on hand ample capital to carry out his plans, and there is no man living who is better posted on Alaska and the great North West Territories than Mr. Joseph Ladue. He has just returned from that country to his old home in Schuler Falls, N. Y., where he passed a large portion of his boyhood and early manhood. Mr. Ladue left his home nearly twenty years ago to seek his fortune in the west going first to the Black Hills, where he was successful in gold mining, thence to Arizona and the Pacific coast and finally located in Alaska and the northwest, where he has covered almost the entire country since 1882. Mr. Ladue is a typical pioneer: strong, hardy and resolute—a man of iron as one must needs be to go through the hardships he has and come out with a constitution unbroken and unimpared at about the age of 43. Mr. Ladue has not only worked his muscles to good advantage to himself with the result of an abundance of the world's goods, far beyond the dreams of men, but he has evidently all this time been closely observing the conditions of that strange country-the Yukon Valley-which has so suddenly become one of the great centers upon which human interest throughout the world is focussed.

When the wonderful stories began to come down from the Yukon country it was naturally concluded that it was at least half exaggeration. That any got back into well beaten tracks and such amount of gold could be taken in so short a time from a country like that under the most most unfavorable conditions was held to be incredible. But when the great bags of virgin gold began to be poured out upon mint counters in San Francisco under the eyes of the whole world (for modern journalism does this, annihilating time and space) people began to wonder and the wonder grew day by day as the real facts were disclosed, and now people who are well inmonths, ruminating no doubt now on formed as to the facts declare that half the truth has not been told of the golden treasures of the Yukon Valley.

As we have already said, there is no man today alive who knows more about this wonderful country than does Mr. Ladue. What makes his talk of it specially interesting and reliable is the fact that his knowledge of it is practical. It has not been gained from hearsay nor from desultory visits made now and then at certain favorable seasons of the year, but from steady living there through the long summer days and the long winter nights, year in and year out for 15 years, where he now owns the best mining claims on the Klondyke and

BLACK ROCKS.

A Story of the Early Days of the Connellsville Coal Region.

A writer in Forest and Stream says that Elias Blank, one of the early settlers of what is now the great Connellsville coal region, in western Pennsylvania, was among the first Americans to burn soft coal. How the thing came about is thus described:

One night Mr. Blank was aroused by a rapping at his door. Opening it, he admitted a famous Indian fighter, Lewis Whetzell, and a companion, Jonathan Gates, commonly known as "Long Arms.

"Friend Lewis," said Blank, "where have thee and our friend been and where bound?'

"I want to get out of here at once," said Whetzell, "and Long Arms is of the same opinion. This country's bewitched, and Long Arms and I are nearly scared to death."

"Friend Lewis, thee must not tell such stories to me," said old Elias. "Thee knows I am thy friend, and I courage, and friend Jonathan Gates, whom some call Long Arms, fears nothing on earth, and I'm fearful nothing anywhere else, and yet thou tellest gets, beyond the dream of avarice. Joseph Ladue then me that he and thee are scared even almost unto death. Shame on thee so to declare before thy friend, who loves ye both as he were thy father!'

"No. no. Elias," said Whetzell, dropping into the Quaker speech. "I tell thee no lie. We are scared. Yesterday afternoon we were in hiding about a very carefully, and we got some black rocks to prop up a little kettle and put them beside the fire rather than in it, and the black rocks took fire and burned fiercely, with a filthy smoke and a bright light, and Long Arms said the devil would come if we staid, and we grabbed our kettle and poured out the water and made our way here, leaving the black rocks to burn.

did not tell Whetzell what the black rocks were, but he found out exactly where the men had made their fire, and when they went away he gave them each a new Ezra Engle rifle, a knife and a tomahawk, with four pounds of powder and a supply of lead.

ground, found the "black rocks" and istence in a 12 foot vein of coal that is absolutely free from slate and burns like pitch.

Clean Shirts In Germany.

The Berlin Boersen-Courier tells about a German's invention of a paper shirt front which is intended to appeal to the large number of continental Germans who wear dickies. The shirt front has a paper collar polish and is in seven layers. As each layer is torn off it reveals another white, glistening front. Thus from one paper dicky the wearer may evolve a clean paper shirt front for every day in the week. The dicky is made to button to any kind of shirt. It costs but 30 pfennig, or about 7 cents; consequently the expense of a clean front is but a cent a day. In view of the prevalence of the dicky habit in Germany the inventor has taken steps to manufacture his compound shirt fronts in large quantities.

JOSEPH LADUE,

the new Bonanza King of the Klondyke Gold Regions, gives the facts. His book reads like "The Arabian Nights," BUT Joseph Ladue KNOWS whereof he writes. He was the first man on the spot when the first gold was discovered thy head. I know thou art a man of last August, 1896. He located one rich claim and immediately purchased twelve others at a low price before their value was known. He has refused $100,000 for any ONE of these claims, as they are rich with virgin gold nug-

at the mouth of the Klondyke and Yukon Rivers, by erecting the first house in the region in September, one month after the gold was first discovered. He evening we built a fire under the bank bought 178 acres from the government on the city site where his town lots 150x50 are now selling for $5,000 each.

Mr. Ladue was fortunate enough to be successful in his trading post investments to have on hand ample capital to carry out his plans, and there is no man living who is better posted on Alaska and the great North West Territories than Mr. Joseph Ladue. He has just returned from that country to his old home in Schuler Falls, N. Y., where he passed a large portion of his boyhood and early manhood. Mr. Ladue left his home nearly twenty years ago to seek Elias Blank was much interested. He his fortune in the west going first to the Black Hills, where he was successful in gold mining, thence to Arizona and the Pacific coast and finally located in Alaska and the northwest, where he has covered almost the entire country since 1882. Mr. Ladue is a typical pioneer: strong, hardy and resolute—a man of iron as one must needs be to go through the hardships he has and come out with a constitution unbroken and unimpared at about the age of 43. Mr. Ladue has Then he hunted up their camping not only worked his muscles to good advantage to himself with the result of an abundance of the world's goods, far beyond the dreams of men, but he has hills, and this coal bank is still in ex- evidently all this time been closely observing the conditions of that strange country-the Yukon Valley-which has so suddenly become one of the great centers upon which human interest throughout the world is focussed.

When the wonderful stories began to come down from the Yukon country it was naturally concluded that it was at least half exaggeration. That any got back into well beaten tracks and such amount of gold could be taken in so short a time from a country like that am even occupying a house where near-under the most most unfavorable conditions was held to be incredible. But when the great bags of virgin gold began to be poured out upon mint counters groaned over his fevers, his delays and in San Francisco under the eyes of the whole world (for modern journalism does this, annihilating time and space) people began to wonder and the wonder grew day by day as the real facts were disclosed, and now people who are well inmonths, ruminating no doubt now on formed as to the facts declare that half the truth has not been told of the golden treasures of the Yukon Valley.

As we have already said, there is no man today alive who knows more about this wonderful country than does Mr. Ladue. What makes his talk of it specially interesting and reliable is the fact that his knowledge of it is practical. It has not been gained from hearsay nor from desultory visits made now and then at certain favorable seasons of the year, but from steady living there through the long summer days and the long winter nights, year in and year out for 15 years, where he now owns the best mining claims on the Klondyke and its tributaries. In presenting his book to the public we do so knowing that it is by an authority on the subject of which he writes. His first work entitled Vast Improvement and Extension of Mingo Junction Mills.

SIUEBENVILLE, Oct. 2.—Vast improvements are being contemplated for the Mingo Junction plant of the Ætna-Standard company, which will revolutionize present methods of making steel products. The cost of these improvements it is estimated will be $750,-000 or over. The improvements contemplate the modernizing of the plants, the equipping of a second furnace and the operation of both furnaces at one

The present steel plant will be torn down and rollingmills built where it stands. A Bessemer steel plant 520 feet long is planned and this is to be fitted up in the most modern manner. A finely equipped large open hearth steel plant is contemplated. The furnaces may be provided with automatic molds.

Six mill buildings will be erected in which the steel will be finished into all grades of merchant iron, axle iron, angle iron, and an immense warehouse will be erected. The tracking and switching arrangements will be revolutionized. The iron will be run from the furnace into immense ladles, thence into the converting mills, then into the molds which will be standing on cars, from there into the blooms and rolls and on to the finishing mills, continuing in a heated condition through all the mills.

The most modern of traveling and electric cranes, etc., will be in use. When the improvements are com-pleted the Mingo Junction plant will be one of the most extensive and best equipped in the valley.

The industrial skies hereabouts have brightened considerably. The Acme chimney works have started up, giving employment to 700 hands. The Riverside furnace will start next week, employing 150 men. The Jefferson iron-works' furnace will be started shortly. It is said that George A. Dean will have charge. The company has been in the hands of a receiver.

The Steubenville Glass company is operating its decorating and engraving departments with 50 hands, and the furnace will be started in 30 days. The Steubenville pottery is running full. The Steubenville and Mingo boards of trade have a number of propositions before them looking for the building of industrial concerns.

TIRES THAT LEAK.

The Morgan & Wright single-tube quick-repair tire must be regarded as a distinct improvement in bicycle tire construction. It has the following advantages:

While punctures in it can be repaired with plugs, or semi-liquid injections, as well as in any other single-tube tire, it can be permanently repaired by using the quick-repair strip inside the tire. See cut No. 1.

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, as in cut No. 2, the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, as in cut No. 3.

The Morgan & Wright single-tube quick-repair tire is guaranteed not porous. This is on account of the way in which it is made. Nearly every rider has heard of tires that "leak like a sieve."

Many tires rot, because water gets into the fabric between the two layers of rubber. The Morgan & Wright fabric is proof against moisture.

Everybody knows how comfortable Morgan & Wright tires are, and yet how seldom they puncture. This is due to the fabric.

Ask any bicycle dealer whether other tires last as long as Morgan & Wright tires. Ask, also, what the Morgan & Wright guarantee means. Morgan & Wright tires are repaired free of charge, at the factory in Chicago or at any of the Morgan & Wright free repair shops, located in the principal cities.

N. B.-When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may camage it considerably.

Vast Improvement and Extension of Mingo Junction Mills.

SIUEBENVILLE, Oct. 2.- Vast improvements are being contemplated for the Mingo Junction plant of the Ætna-Standard company, which will revolutionize present methods of making steel products. The cost of these improvements it is estimated will be $750,-000 or over. The improvements contemplate the modernizing of the plants. the equipping of a second furnace and the operation of both furnaces at one

The present steel plant will be torn down and rollingmills built where it stands. A Bessemer steel plant 520 feet long is planned and this is to be fitted up in the most modern manner. A finely equipped large open hearth steel plant is contemplated. The furnaces may be provided with automatic molds.

Six mill buildings will be erected in which the steel will be finished into all grades of merchant iron, axle iron, angle iron, and an immense warehouse will be erected. The tracking and switching arrangements will be revolutionized. The iron will be run from the furnace into immense ladles, thence into the converting mills, then into the molds which will be standing on cars, from there into the blooms and rolls and on to the finishing mills, continuing in a heated condition through all the mills.

The most modern of traveling and electric cranes, etc., will be in use. When the improvements are completed the Mingo Junction plant will be one of the most extensive and best equipped in the valley. The industrial skies hereabouts have brightened considerably. The Acme chimney works have started up, giving employment to 700 hands. The Riverside furnace will start next week, employing 150 men. The Jefferson ironworks' furnace will be started shortly. It is said that George A. Dean will have charge. The company has been in the hands of a receiver.

The Steubenville Glass company is operating its decorating and engraving departments with 50 hands, and the furnace will be started in 30 days. The Steubenville pottery is running full. The Steubenville and Mingo boards of trade have a number of propositions before them looking for the building of industrial concerns.

TIRES THAT LEAK.

The Morgan & Wright single-tube quick-repair tire must be regarded as a distinct improvement in bicycle tire construction. It has the following advantages:

While punctures in it can be repaired with plugs, or semi-liquid injections, as well as in any other single-tube tire, it can be permanently repaired by using the quick-repair strip inside the tire. See cut No. 1.

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, as in cut No. 2, the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, as in cut

The Morgan & Wright single-tube quick-repair tire is guaranteed not porous. This is on account of the way in which it is made. Nearly every rider has heard of tires that "leak like a sieve."

Many tires rot, because water gets into the fabric between the two layers of rubber. The Morgan & Wright fabric is proof against moisture.

Everybody knows how comfortable Morgan & Wright tires are, and yet how seldom they puncture. This is due to the fabric.

Ask any bicycle dealer whether other tires last as long as Morgan & Wright tires. Ask, also, what the Morgan & Wright guarantee means. Morgan & Wright tires are repaired free of charge, at the factory in Chicago or at any of the Morgan & Wright free repair shops, located in the principal cities.

N. B.-When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.
